INVENTORY OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITES IN PARRAMATTA, 1788 TO 1844.

1.1 Introduction

The inventory of archaeological sites in Parramatta dating from 1788 to 1844 is divided up into three parts, each with their own numerical sequence, as follows.

3. Parramatta Central. Inventory nos. 1-158. (South of Parramatta River).

The inventory describes a total number of 300 archaeological sites in Parramatta. The inventory numbers are clearly shown on the archaeological zoning plans (1N and 1C).

In most cases the boundaries of each archaeological site are defined by the Section and Allotment number (see below).

1.2 Explanation of the Inventory

Each site in the inventory appears in a similar format. The purpose of each line or entry is described below:

No. Inventory number.

Cadastral information. This entry records all the cadastral references contained on the Draft Local Environment Plan, drawn up by Parramatta City Council, under the provisions of the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act, 1979. (Plan No. 80282, File No. 8130. 19 March 1985.) Additional information was obtained from the maps of the City of Parramatta, 1:2000 series, prepared by the Cumberland County Council (in co-operation with Parramatta City Council). These maps may contain outdated, incorrect or incomplete information. For the most recent and accurate cadastral references, the reader should consult cadastral maps available from the Land Titles Office of New South Wales.

Address. In most instances the street name is given, but not the street number.
Name of site/sequence of land title. Under a number of headings the name and sequence of land title for each site is given. These appear in the following order, except where the land was granted prior to 1823.

Pre 1823 leases. The name of the lessee of town allotments leased between 1796 and 1810.

c.1804 map. The number of the site on the c.1804 map.

1823 return. The name of the occupant of each town allotment as recorded in Surveyor General, 1823, General Return of Allotments in the Town of Parramatta. (A.O. 4/7576).

1823 lease. The name of the lessee of each town allotment leased on 30 June 1823.
Grant. The name of the grantee, and in some instances the date of the grant.

Section and allotment numbers. The section and allotment number of each town allotment is given on the Department of Lands, 1961, Map of the Town of Parramatta and Suburban and Adjacent Lands. Parishes of St. John and Field of Mars, County of Cumberland, Metropolitan Land District.

Sites of buildings. The number and/or name of buildings and structures on each site as indicated on each map.

The use of the word "same" in this entry does not necessarily mean that the same building is present on two or more maps. Instead it means that a building is shown in the same location on two or more maps.

Building materials are only identified on the 1844 map. It differentiated between wood, masonry, or government buildings. Unfortunately the building materials for government buildings were not specified.

Extant buildings. In this entry are recorded only those buildings which are still standing, or survive above ground, and which were built before 1844. If no buildings are recorded as extant, this in no way prejudices the survival of the archaeological site below ground. Other standing buildings may still be of cultural significance.
Archaeological zoning. The archaeological sites are classified into 4 groups. The explanation of each group is given in the text below. (Section 1.4).

Historical evidence. This entry contains supplementary historical evidence on a number of sites.

Notes. This entry contains references to sources for each site.

1.3 Archaeological zoning plan: recommendations for archaeological sites, groups 1 to 4.

The archaeological sites identified by this study in Parramatta have been divided into 4 categories (volume 1, section 4.4.2). The category to which each site belongs is indicated on the maps accompanying this report, namely, Base Map and Inventory of Sites (1C and 1N). The same information is recorded for each site in the inventory under the heading of archaeological zoning.

The four categories are summarised below with appropriate recommendations:

Group 1
Underground archaeological remains.

Each site should be subject to archaeological investigations prior to development.

Once the archaeological investigation is completed, there may be a requirement for archaeological remains to be conserved in situ, either completely or in part. This requirement will be based on the following factors, namely their survival and present condition, archaeological potential and cultural significance.

Group 2
Underground archaeological remains.

Each site should be subject to archaeological investigations prior to development.

On the evidence at present available, there may be a requirement for archaeological remains to be conserved in situ, either completely or in part. This requirement will be based on the following factors, namely their survival and present condition, archaeological potential and cultural significance.

Group 3

Standing structures and buildings, erected prior to 1844, also including cemeteries.

A conservation plan should be prepared for each site, and consideration given to statutory protection under the Heritage Act, 1977. The plan should address the whole site including the standing buildings and underground archaeological remains.

Group 4

Archaeological sites within Parramatta Park.

These sites should be assessed and included in the conservation plan for Parramatta Park. Consideration should be given to statutory protection under the Heritage Act, 1977.

Sites of buildings
1792 map: This map does not show the location of the redoubt and other buildings. It is not shown on any other available historic map.

Extant buildings
none.

Archaeological zoning
group 1.

Historical evidence
The site for the redoubt was marked out in November 1788(1), and was completed by July 1789. It contained a barrack for the garrison and a provision store. The convicts were housed in huts(2).

Contemporary illustrations indicate that the redoubt and other buildings were located in the vicinity of Old Government House, and also near the river crossing. The bridge was located at the point where Pitt Street (Inventory No. 9) originally extended to the River. Confirmation of the redoubt's location may be found in Watkin Tench's statement in November 1790 that Government House (Inventory No. 3) was situated "beside the old wooden barrack and store"(3).

By December 1790 the redoubt and barrack were in a state of disrepair, while the storehouse had already been replaced by November 1790(4).

Historical evidence
By July 1789 a government farm had been established on the north bank of the River, opposite the redoubt (Inventory No. 1). It included a small house for the superintendent surrounded by various barns granaries and other buildings(1).

Historical evidence
The first residence for the Governor at Parramatta was built beside the old barracks and store (Inventory No. 1) before November 1790. It was described as "a house of lath and plaister, 44 feet long by 16 wide, for the governor, on a ground floor only, with excellent out-houses and appurtenances attached to it"(1).

This first building collapsed through decay in late 1798. The new Government House was nearly completed by mid 1799, but between 4 and 6 June was badly damaged by a storm(2). It had to be pulled down and recommenced(3). The second Government House was more spacious than the first, measuring:

"60 feet long and 24 feet broad from out to out, with a suit of rooms upstairs and cellars under the house"(4).

The upstairs rooms were in fact attic rooms(5).

By 1806 Government House was in need of repair to internal woodwork, out-houses and stabling(6). Little maintenance was carried out in 1807(7), and substantial further works were left until 1812.

Governor Lachlan Macquarie commenced repairs and a major building programme in 1812, but it took until 1817 for these improvements to be completed(8). They were described as follows:

"The Old Government House repaired, enlarged and much improved by making it a double House and adding Wings to it, so as to afford sufficient accommodation for the Governor, his Family and Staff"(9).

By November 1970:

"Four inclosures of 20 acres each, are planned for the reception of cattle, which may arrive in the colony, and two of these are already fenced in. In the centre of them is to be erected a house, for the person who will be fixed upon to take care of the cattle. All these inclosures are supplied with water; and only a part of the trees which grow in them being cut down, gives to them a very park-like and beautiful appearance"(1).

Historical evidence
The first mention of workshops for convict artificers and mechanics in Parramatta, namely "a commodious blacksmith's shop", is dated to November 1790(1).

In 1793 the botanist on the Spanish expedition wrote:

"In front of Government House, to the north west, was a general workshop, where carpenters and locksmiths were employed in furnishing the wants of the colony, and apparently doing excellent work"(2).

The historical evidence is not clear on the location of these early workshops, but such facilities must have been well established by the late 1790s as many skilled convicts were employed at Parramatta(3).

The most likely alternatives for the position of these workshops are on the north side of George Street opposite Government House, or on the south side of Macquarie Street, east of Pitt Street.

In 1799 the artificers yard and barrack was fenced around(4).

Another site was chosen by Governor Macquarie for the new convict barracks and lumber yard and both these buildings were completed by 1821 on the north side of Macquarie Street (Parramatta Central Inventory No. 90). These buildings were described as follows:

"A Brick Built Barrack of two Stories high for the residence and accommodation of 150 Male convicts with Mess Rooms and all the necessary Out Offices, including House for the Superintendent attached hereto, the whole of the Premises being enclosed with a High Brick Wall, and having also a Garden immediately adjoining the said Wall for the use of the Convicts".

A New Brick Built Lumber Yard, with all descriptions of Work-Shops and Covered in Saw Pitts, for the different Artificers and Mechanics in the employ of Government, including Stables for the Working Horses and Bullocks, Hay-Lofts, and Store Rooms for Store and Grain, and also Offices for the Superintendent and his Clerks, the whole of these Premises being Contiguous to the Convict Barracks and enclosed in a high Brick Wall"(5).

This street was laid out in 1790 with the foundation of the town by Governor Phillip. As the main avenue of the town, running between Government House (Inventory No. 3) and the Wharf (Parramatta Central. Inventory No. 54), it was 1 mile in length, 205 feet wide, with a central carriageway(1).

The section to the west of O’Connell Street was closed c.1817 and only subsequently used as a carriageway to Government House.

Historical evidence
A range of buildings was erected on this site by c.1792. They may have included a store and a barrack, or possibly workshops(1).

Of the 2 buildings identified on the c.1804 map, the granary may have been the one constructed in 1798(2), while the brewery was completed in 1804(3). If the former identification is correct, it was a wooden granary, 140 feet long by 40 feet wide, weatherboarded, with a shingled roof for the storage of maize(4).

An unidentified building is shown on the c.1804 map flanking the east side of Pitt Street (Inventory No. 9), on the north side of George Street (Inventory No. 10).

These buildings were removed by c.1817 in advance of the extension of the Domain to O'Connell Street(5).

Preparations for the construction of a water-mill at Parramatta began in 1798 and continued at least until 1800(1). The work appears to have met with delays, including the washing away of the two earthen dams in 1804. These were replaced using "piling and casing the front of the dams"(2).

When in late 1804 the works were finally completed, Governor King could not report enthusiastically on the project:

"I am sorry to say that the great labour which has been bestowed in constructing an excellent water-mill and dam at Parramatta will not in any manner recompense the labour that has been bestowed upon it. The mill and dam has been erected on the same spot designed by Governor Hunter as the only situation likely to be supplied with water, but the experience of the last three years sufficiently proves that the water is very insufficient for that purpose, except in periods of much rain. The dam being firmly constructed and the machinery of the mill well executed, it must remain to work whenever there is a sufficiency of water"(3).

The present gatehouse was completed in 1885(2).

Historical evidence
(For the history of the first Female Factory in Parramatta, see Inventory No. 89).

The original Female Factory above and attached to the gaol for male convicts could only accommodate about 60 persons, although by 1817 more than 200 women were working there, the excess finding their own lodgings in the town. Governor Macquarie was well aware of the behaviour that this allowed, and proposed to construct a much larger factory(1). This was commenced in 1819 and completed before 1821. It was described as follows:

"A Large Commodious handsome stone Built Barrack and Factory, three Stories high, with Wings of one Story each for the accommodation and residence of 300 Female Convicts, with all the requisite Out-Offices, including Carding, Weaving and Loom Rooms, Workshops, Stores for Wool, Flax, etc; etc; Quarters for the Superintendent, and also a large Kitchen Garden for the use of the Female Convicts, and Bleaching Ground for Bleaching the Cloth and Linen Manufactured; the Whole of the Buildings and said Grounds consisting of about Four acres, being enclosed with a high Stone Wall and Moat or Wet Ditch. N.B. - This important and highly useful as well as necessary Building was erected by Contract."(2)

Historical evidence
The first gaol to be built in Parramatta was located on the north side of George Street in 1797 (Parramatta Central, Inventory No. 39). The governor ordered the assistance of "every settler and housekeeper" to expedite its construction:

"It is therefore expected and ordered that they do deliver in, at the place where the building is to be erected, ten logs weekly each, the logs to be 9 feet long, not under or over 7 inches diameter, and that they are quite straight. The housekeepers and settlers will be furnished with a receipt for the numbers they send in. By this means the Governor will be enabled to judge of their attention to the measure principally meant for their security. The Governor thinks it is also necessary to inform the officers who are furnish'd with labourers from Government that he expects from them twenty logs each"(1).

By June 1797, in spite of the difficulties experienced in procuring labour and materials, the double-logged prison, of 100 feet in length, and containing separate cells, was completed. The whole building was enclosed in a high paling fence(2).

Prior to December 1799 a brick building was erected in the gaol yard for debtors containing 3 rooms(3).

The log prison at Parramatta was burnt down on 28 December 1799. Those responsible were never caught in spite of rewards being offered. To add to the vexation of the government the log-prison at Sydney was also burnt down, probably much to the amusement of the convicts(4).

Although the debtors prison may have remained on this site for a number of years, the new gaol was constructed on the north bank of Parramatta River. It was commenced in 1803 and completed the following year. The upper floor of the gaol was separated from the lower providing a segregated asylum for female convicts. The gaol was surrounded by a wall against which buildings for workshops were erected. Thus the whole complex provided a gaol for male convicts and a separate female factory or house of industry(5). (For the subsequent history of the Female Factory, see Inventory No. 14).

This gaol was replaced between 1835 and 1842. (Inventory No. 8).

The bridge over the Parramatta River at Pitt Street (Bridge Street) was built by c.1792 (Parramatta Park. Inventory no. 8). It was replaced by another on the Church Street alignment by c.1804.

This latter bridge was superseded between 1836 and 1839 by the existing sandstone bridge, designed and constructed by David Lennox(1). It has been widened to take more traffic.

Historical evidence

A hospital is first mentioned at Parramatta in November 1790. It was described as,

"a most wretched hospital, totally destitute of every conveniency. Luckily for the gentleman who superintends this hospital, and still more luckily for those who are doomed in case of sickness to enter it, the air at Rose Hill has hitherto been generally healthy"(1).

In April 1792 the foundation of a new hospital was laid, and it was completed by December of that year. It was built in brick, and consisted of two wards. The whole was surrounded by a wooden palisade(2).

The hospital was reroofed in 1798, the dispensary plastered and limewashed, and new chimneys built in the same year(3).

In 1799 the rooves of the hospital and surgeon's house were re-tiled(4). General repairs were carried out in 1803(5).

Between 1817 and 1819 a new hospital was erected(6). It was described as follows:

"An Hospital built of brick, two Stories high, with an upper and lower Verandah all round, with all the necessary Out offices for the residence and occupation of 100 Patients, with Ground for a Garden and for the Patients to take Air and exercise in, the whole of the Premises being enclosed with a High Strong Stockade"(7).

Historical evidence
To replace the storehouse that had been built in the redoubt in 1788-9 (Parramatta Park. Inventory No. 1), a new brick storehouse with tile roof, 100 feet long by 24 feet wide, was commenced in 1790 near the wharf. It included a house for the store-keeper(1). The experimental nature of brick manufacturing in New South Wales at this date is illustrated by the comment made on the poor quality of the bricks used in constructing the store(2).

In 1798 a new house for the store-keeper was erected(3). While between 1796 and 1800 the foundations and part of the walls of the wet store were renewed(4).

Some repairs to the storehouse were completed in 1807, but its general ruinous condition necessitated the commencement of a new stone storehouse immediately in front of the wharf in 1808. To gain this position the government exchanged land with John Macarthur, he receiving instead an equal amount of land at Sydney.(5).

Little progress was made on the store until 1810. Up to that time only the foundation was in place but by March 1810 it was finished(6). (Inventory No. 59).

Historical evidence
In November 1790 the foundations of the military barracks were laid. The first brick barrack measured 100 feet by 24 feet and was designed for 100 men. The other barrack buildings on the same site were intended for the officers and additional men. Apart from the poor quality of the bricks, the absence of limestone necessitated the use of clay for mortar. It was thus important that buildings should be completed before heavy rains. The first barrack was finished by March 1791, the second was to be completed by May of that year(1).
The final layout comprised 3 barracks on 3 sides of a square.

New doors and window shutters were provided in 1797, new stools and bedsteads in 1798, together with the rebuilding of brick chimneys(2). In 1803 further repairs were required(3).

By 1817 the barracks originally built in 1791 were beyond repair(4). A new site was chosen and construction commenced by 1819. (Inventory No. 100). The new barracks on a similar plan to the old were completed in 1820(5). They were described as follows:

"A New Barrack built of Brick, two Stories high, for the accommodation of 100 Soldiers; with two Wings, also built of Brick, each one Story High, and with Verandahs for the accommodation of the full Proportion of Commissioned Officers; having likewise all the necessary Out Offices for Officers and Men, together with a Guard House and Store House, the whole of the Ground, consisting of about eight acres, being enclosed by a Brick Wall in Front and Stockade on the other three Sides"(6).

Historical evidence
The first church in Parramatta was erected by 1792(1).

The foundation of a second small church was laid in 1798(2), and in the same year repairs were undertaken, and a new pulpit provided(3).

By 1800 the government said they had:

"Erected an elegant Church at Parramatta one hundred feet in length and forty-four feet in width with a room of twenty feet long, raised on stone pillars' intended for a vestry or council room"(4).

In fact the situation was slightly different for:

"the walls are finished and the framing of the roof far advanced; this work will be continued, and may be finished in eight months"(5).

Work progressed very slowly. In August 1806 it was still unfinished:

"Church covered in but no Pews or anything but a Pulpit. Tower not half built, Walls broke, and will require re-building"(6).

Repairs were undertaken in 1807(7).

Thus by 1807 the church was usable, the majority of the work having been completed. It was not until 1810 that further repairs and alterations were undertaken, with the addition of the two steeples(8).

In 1822 L. Macquarie described the improvements he had undertaken during his governorship. These included:

"The Old Church repaired, new roofed, lengthened and greatly improved, inside and out, new Chancel and Spire being added thereto, the Outer Walls stuccoed in imitation of stone, and the Church Yard enclosed with a neat Paling"(9).

In 1817 a new Parsonage had also been built. It was located on the north side of the Great Western Highway, overlooking the town:

"A very Handsome Commodious Parsonage House, built of Brick and two Stories High, with suitable Offices, Garden and large Grazing Paddock, all enclosed with a Paling for the residence of the Principal Chaplain of the Colony"(10).
